"Makes Cooking Easy"

You Can't Help Liking This Range

The GOLD MEDAL GLENWOOD is in reality a combination range consisting of two complete ranges using different fuels, with neither one interfering in any manner with the other.

Coal supplies the fuel for one, and gas for the other. So far as the use of these two fuels is concerned, it is exactly as though you had a coal range and a gas range. The difference is that they occupy the same floor space instead of being two separate ranges in two different parts of the kitchen.

You may use the coal and the gas at the same time, or either one without the other. You have gas in warm weather and coal in cold weather. But at any time you wish to do more baking or more cooking, you have the advantage of using both fuels and both ovens at the same time.

It responds to your cooking art so quickly and efficiently, you will find that cooking is one of the greatest pleasures in your home.

Call and See Them and you will understand at once why a Glenwood Range "Makes Cooking Easy"

FATE OF SCOTSDALE PUBLIC LIBRARY MAY BE DECIDED TONIGHT

Council Expected to Take Some Action Toward Securing Home.

MUST VACATE SCHOOL HOUSE

Women of the Presbyterian Church Tender Party to Mrs. J. E. Hutchinson on Occasion of Anniversary; Sunday School Convention Sunday.

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, May 3.—What is to be done with the local library is still the question uppermost in the minds of most people who are continuing daily to use the library and wonder if they will lose this privilege that they have enjoyed without stopping to consider just where the money came from and who is responsible for the maintenance of the institution. The older persons used the library and as the younger generation came they filled their cards.

The question in most minds is whether the borough council will make a move at the regular monthly meeting this evening to house the library or whether it will be tabled and passed on for another month or so. Since the library has been established, if it were housed by the school board, it has been provided for financially by the late Congressman A. L. Kelster and since his death his estate has made provision for its maintenance.

Since the school board, several months ago, found it needed the room now occupied by the library and that at the expiration of the contract for its use, in August, the library management must vacate the room now occupied the people have been slow to value the library and find a home for it.

The board of trade, finding that the library was to be turned out of the present home, took the matter up and discussed plans but nothing definite has been accomplished.

At the April meeting of council the public looked to it for some disposition of the matter and it in turn took the view that since nothing had been presented in regard to the matter of conducting the library, it was not in position to take any action. So it is hoped it will now investigate and take some action.

A petition, signed by citizens was presented to the school board at its meeting last Monday night, asking the body to still father the library. The board tabled the petition. Citizens are hoping that the city dad at tonight's meeting will take some definite action in the matter.

CO-OPERATIVE SALE OF WOOL URGED ON FAYETTE GROWERS

The problem again confronting the wool grower of Fayette county is whether he should sell his wool as an individual grower or combine with his neighbor and place the wool in the hands of a commission man and market the clip in that manner. This method of marketing has been practiced during the past two years and with a great deal of success, because it is based on sound economic principles.

The ultimate and highest market for wool is the mill man and manufacturer. To get the clip into the hands of these mill men and manufacturers with as little waste as possible will undoubtedly net the grower more money for his product. The customary method of marketing the wool has been to sell it to a buyer or collector, who in turn sold to a commission man, the commission man at all times being in close contact with the activities of the mill men and manufacturers. It is quite evident that in this scheme there are several individuals who actually do not add any value to the wool, but who must be paid for their services, payment for their services coming from both the producer and consumer. The procedure followed during the past two years has been that of placing the wool in the hands of a commission man and having him sell directly to the mill men and manufacturers, the grower thereby getting the manufacturer's price less the commission man's fee. It is true that some growers have received more for their wool on the farm than by selling it directly, which can be explained by the fact that there are some buyers who are trying to break up the organizations and consequently have offered more for the wool on the farms than its actual market value.

The Fayette County Wool Growers' association and the Farm Bureau heartily endorse the cooperative marketing of wool.

The After Effects of Pneumonia

This is No. 2 of a series of advertisements, prepared by a competent physician, explaining how certain diseases which attack the air passages—such as Pneumonia, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Measles or even a long continued Cold—often leave these organs in an inflamed, congested state, thus affording a favorable foothold for invading germs. And how Vick's VapoRub may be of value in this condition.

Pneumonia attacks the air cells of the lungs. An inflammation is set up and matter is thrown off which causes the air cells to solidify, thus preventing the natural flow of blood thru the lungs. This "backing up" of the blood causes the heart to pump harder, just as stepping on a hose increases the water pressure, which is the reason why, during this disease, the physician watches the overburdened heart so carefully.

After recovery the lungs are filled with a mass of wreckage—the debris of the battle—which must be gotten rid of by a process known as resolution. Frequently, inflamed spots remain, congestion persists, cough hangs on, and the least exposure brings on a cold that is hard to get rid of. If neglected, such damaged air passages may easily develop serious disease of the lungs.

Such cases should always continue under a physician's care and frequent examinations should be made to see that nature is properly continuing the rebuilding process.

Nightly applications of Vick's VapoRub will aid nature in this work. Because Vick's acts locally by stimulation thru the skin to draw out the inflammation, attract the blood away from the congested spots and relieve the cough. In addition, the medicinal ingredients of Vicks are vaporized by the body heat. These vapors are breathed in all night long, thus bringing the medication to bear directly upon the inflamed areas.

Vicks should be rubbed in over the throat and chest until the skin is red—then spread on thickly and covered with hot flannel cloths. Leave the clothing loose around the neck and the bed clothes arranged in the form of a funnel so the vapors arising may be freely inhaled. If the cough is annoying, swallow a small bit of Vicks the size of a pea.

Samples to new users will be sent free on request to the Vick Chemical Company, 232 Broad Street, Greensboro, N. C.

AMERICANIZATION AND THE INTERCHURCH MOVEMENT.

The exercises held in different sections of the country Saturday as a means of promoting a healthy interest in Americanization, should have a significant relation to the Interchurch World Movement.

While the former is entirely secular and the latter interdenominational, both have the common purpose in view of making better citizens. The appeal the civil agencies are making to the aliens is designed to inculcate in them a desire to become more than mere sojourners in the land that has given them opportunity to realize the blessings of liberty and freedom beyond the dreams of their youth in the countries across the sea. They are urged to take upon themselves the obligations and duties of citizenship in order that they may enjoy its benefits and privileges to the largest degree.

In these days of universal unrest and a widespread belief that things are not right, and the prevalence of the feeling among foreigners that America, after all, is not the dear republic the newcomers to our shores fancied it to be, there is crying need that something more than granting naturalization papers be done to give Americanization its real meaning. To supply that need ought to be one of the results or functions of the Interchurch movement. As one of the fruits of this great forward step toward a co-operation of moral and religious forces we, as a people, should show to the foreigners that our interest in them is more vital and less selfish than simply making them eligible as voters and taxpayers.

We have failed, and failed lamentably, to bring ourselves, and the church, in close touch with the foreign born toilers. We have displayed a certain mawkish sympathy for them but have actually done little to meet their needs or to foster their respect, admiration and loyalty for our country and its institutions.

"What about the foreigner?" asks a writer in the World Call, when discussing this now very pertinent subject of Americanization. "God brought him here," says this plain spoken observer, "to this great western land in order that he might enjoy the God-given rights which cruel systems denied him in the homeland. Have we Americanized him, civilized him, Christianized him? Let Trotsky answer for millions; he took his post-graduate course in a New York slum. The alien came with a hungry heart, an outstretched hand, a proffered friendship. Alas, to millions America became the land of lost ideals. What have we done? We have insulted him a machoed by calling him 'kneecap,' 'chink,' 'daggo,' 'bohunk,' 'wop,' 'gunge,' 'greaser,' 'nigger.' We have robbed him, exploited him. We have denied him our homes, our churches. We have wrapped our Pharisaic garments about us, and we touch and are unclean."

"The wit said of our Puritan fathers that 'they're hell on their knees, then upon the aborigines.' Truly, and their posterity are still here."

We must not permit it to be said of us that in our relations to those whom it is planned to make new Americans we are like the Puritans and their posterity in their attitude to the original Americans. To the reproach of having maltreated the aborigines there must not be added the equally unpardonable reproach of failing in our duty to those who are inspired by the same hope our forefathers were when they preceded them from lands of oppression to the Land of Opportunity.

POSSIBILITY OF BARE PANTRY SHELTERS.

The ascending price of sugar and the growing scarcity of this essential article of food ought to emphasize the necessity for larger production of foodstuffs that do not require sugar for their preservation. Without relief from the present situation before the fruit season arrives the canning industry, both in the home and in the public establishments, will virtually come to a standstill. Without sugar fruits for preserving cannot be bought, no matter how low the prices may be. Except for immediate consumption there will be comparatively little demand. Providing the table during the fruit ripening season will not be much of a problem but stocking up against the needs of next winter will be the condition housewives will have to face. Of course the cold pack method can be utilized in taking care of certain food articles, but without sugar it will be impossible to preserve some of the most wholesome fruits. To the extent that this industry is curtailed just so will it tend to prevent any reduction of the cost of living during the winter.

"If the public," says the Pittsburgh Gazette Times, "were convinced that any sound economic reason were at the foundation of the sugar situation, it might be regarded philosophically. During the war the food administration saw to it that sugar was supplied for canning. Under the circumstances there is likely to be a disposition to wonder why conditions in war were so much better than since hostilities ceased. And the only satisfaction the public is able to get is greater dissatisfaction as conditions grow worse."

Without waiting for a clearing of the sugar situation, important and necessary as that may be, every preparation should be made to increase the production of farm and garden products of such character as can be stored against the needs of the winter season. We may miss fruit preserves, jams, jellies and the like, and in an emergency may be able to get along without them, but we cannot afford to be indifferent to the matter of procuring a supply of other and more staple foods. Under the circumstances the elemental law of self preservation ought to bestir us to a farm and garden activity equal to or greater than characterized by the war years. If it does not we may experience the sensation and suffer the inconvenience of having bare pantry shelves before another growing season arrives.

Attorney General Palmer's alarming predictions of May Day outbreaks, disfigure and disfigurements were as happily unfulfilled as his earlier prophecies about the reduction of the high cost of living have unhappily failed to come true.

The young ladies of the domestic science department in the high school have early learned that the way to a school official's heart is through his stomach—a truth they will later learn applies to all men who hold the more important official position of husband.

All honor, including both the first and the second, is due to the one member of the graduating class of the Dunbar high school, but most of all for having the courage and persistence to complete the course after all her classmates had dropped out.

Even the moon covered her face in humiliation and shame upon seeing the census report for Connelville.

A FOOD SHORTAGE UNLESS PRODUCTION IS INCREASED

Manufacturers Record.

The estimated decrease of 248,000,000 bushels of winter wheat as compared with last year, due to the decrease of 12,000,000 acres in the amount seeded and to an extremely low average condition of the growing crop, is one of the most alarming food situations this country has ever faced. It is alarming not simply because this great decrease in the wheat crop means a very high price for flour, but because the decrease in wheat acreage is merely indicative of the general decrease in the acreage of other crops. The American people have not yet awakened to the realization of what the agricultural decline means.

The farms have been drained by the cities until the production of sufficient food to meet our actual necessities is so much endangered that it is altogether probable that the food prices of today will, twelve months hence, seem to be very cheap. There is a shortage in wheat; there is also a shortage in rye, and likely to be a shortage in the acreage devoted to grain and other crops.

It is not in the power of farmers to change the climatic. With the utmost stretch of their activity, and working from dawn till darkness, they cannot produce food enough to meet the nation's needs. There is no earthly reason why a farmer should be expected to work longer hours, than an industrial worker, but the railroad employees and industrial workers are insisting upon an eight-hour day. If the farmers and the farm laborers followed this example, the cost of all foodstuffs would almost double in price overnight. Every hour cut out from the industrial workers' day, with its accompanying demand for an increase in pay, only serves to intensify the food situation by driving farm laborers away from the country to the city, and causes a steady decrease in food production. The industrial workers and all others who are striving for shorter hours, increased pay and less efficiency in production are merely serving to bring about a condition, which will mean a host of living far beyond anything which this country has ever known.

We are face to face with a farm situation which has in it the menace of a real food famine. Blind, indeed, are the men who do not recognize these dangers. A food famine would mean socialist and anarchistic and bolshevistic unrest, because the public does not understand the cause of these high prices, and does not recognize that the rate of city growth is enormously increasing the number of food consumers at the expense of the number of food producers.

There is nothing new in this, however, though it serves to emphasize the seriousness of the wheat shortage, of the danger of prices of food which will stagger the nation this fall, and, perchance, for several years to come. Unless the people are made fully acquainted with these facts they will not be able to understand the situation, and, therefore, will turn to socialist and anarchistic agitators. It becomes the duty of every teacher, preacher and business man; every newspaper, and every other influence which can enlighten the country as to the facts in regard to world-wide food shortage and especially to emphasize the danger of a food famine in this country. It is also incumbent upon every intelligent man and woman to do their utmost to stem the rush of population from the country to the city, and encourage every effort which will conduce to the larger development of the agricultural interests of America.

Produce more foodstuffs, and keep on producing more, is a doctrine which should be taught from every platform, in every office, and through every newspaper in the land, for, at the best, it will be impossible to so increase the acreage in foodstuffs this year as to meet our actual necessities. The best we can do is to ameliorate the condition by encouraging to the utmost the agricultural output of the country.

Why You Should Buy Guaranteed Roofing

When you buy roofing you want durability as well as shelter. You want to know that it will last long enough to make its average cost per year a reasonable figure.

That is why Certain-teed should appeal to you. For, when properly laid, Certain-teed Roofing is guaranteed for 5, 10 or 15 years, according to weight.

The guarantee adequately protects your investment, but it does not accurately measure Certain-teed's life. In fact no one knows just how durable Certain-teed is, because in no case has it ever been known to wear out on the roof.

And Certain-teed is more than durable. It is weather-proof, fire-retarding and spark-proof. It effectively shelters your property.

With all these advantages, Certain-teed Roofing costs less to buy, less to lay and less to maintain, than any other type of good roofing.

See your dealer about Certain-teed. He either has it or can get it quickly from a nearby Certain-teed distributing center.

GODDARD SUPER-ROCKET WILL BE GIVEN TEST DURING SUMMER

Apparatus May Be Means of Solving Upper Air Problems.

POSSIBLE TO HIT MOON

Special to The Courier.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 1.—First test of working model of rocket apparatus by which Prof. Robert H. Goddard hopes to reach altitudes above the earth's air envelope, and even the moon, will be made at Worcester, Mass., late in July or in August. It is announced in a bulletin from the National Geographic society's Washington headquarters.

"Should Prof. Goddard's theory prove workable by his demonstrations at that time," the bulletin states, "the event may rank in the history of a few super-aviation science, as yet untried, along with the trial flights of the late Prof. Samuel P. Langley's flying machines."

"But while the world ridiculed Langley, and for a time regarded his telephone and Morse's telegraph as mere playthings, our amazing strides in invention have created an open-minded attitude toward adventures in ingenuity so that the Goddard experiments are being awaited with keen interest."

"Wide publicity has been given the speculations concerning whether Prof. Goddard's device may be projected to the moon and while he holds that such a development is not impossible, it is one of the less practical aspects of the device. More immediate possibilities which Prof. Goddard holds forth include the study of the aurora; of the short wave lengths in the spectrum of the sun which are entirely absorbed by the air; and, at more moderate altitudes, measurements of wind, velocity, humidity, temperature and pressure, all of which enter into weather forecasting."

"While the penetration of the upper air, where there is supposed to exist a gas unknown on the lower, aerial levels, the projection of a rocket beyond the world's atmosphere, and perhaps its direction to other planets, all offer a field of speculation outstripping the pure romances of Jules Verne or H. G. Wells. The basic principles of the apparatus, like those underlying most inventions, are simple."

"Briefly, Prof. Goddard's theory is this: The best rocket which could be imagined is one in which all heat energy of the powder could be converted, on burning, into energy of motion. In addition this ideal rocket would consist chiefly of this propelling material, or powder. With a rocket of this sort it is evident that very great ranges would be obtainable with a comparatively small initial mass of rocket."

"In the case of the ordinary rocket neither of these conditions is realized, as only one-fifth of the energy of the powder is converted, on burning, into energy of motion. Furthermore, the powder constitutes but one-fifth the total mass of rocket. So far the problem is to strip the rocket's body and install the highest powered engine possible, as one would in a racing automobile."

"Experiments already performed demonstrate that as much as two-thirds of the heat energy of the powder used can be converted into energy of motion of gases, as compared with previous efficiency of but two per cent."

"As regards the second point—namely, the possibility of using a large proportion of the weight of the rocket as propellant—enough already has been done to show that successive charges of propellant may be fired in the same combustion chamber and experiments in progress are for the purpose of firing a comparatively large number of charges in succession in this way."

"For extremely great altitudes a series of secondary rockets, or rockets within rockets, acting on the same principle might be utilized."

"In working out the application of these principles Prof. Goddard has employed a nozzle to obtain the greatest force possible from the combustion (or explosion); a reloading device whereby the explosive material is used a little at a time; and the employment of a secondary rocket, similar to the first, when extreme altitudes are to be achieved."

"Hence, it is apparent, the principle of the long range gun is employed, and effort is made to avoid the tremendous initial shock, such as occurs with an ordinary gun, by substituting a succession of explosions. One practical advantage of that course is to enable the rocket to carry with it instruments by which the high altitude conditions are to be registered. To prevent the tremendous concussion upon the fall of the instruments a parachute device is contemplated."

"In his experiments with smokeless powder Prof. Goddard already has attained a velocity of nearly 8,000 feet per second—the highest yet attained for matter in any appreciable quantity."

"In respect to the possibility of projecting a rocket to the moon, the question has arisen whether, even should sufficient momentum be obtained, the direction could be controlled to insure hitting that celestial target."

"Prof. Goddard believes it possible to correct the flight, direction of which would be influenced by many disturbing factors, by the use of photosensitive cells. Thus the reflection of the moon's light upon these cells, he believes, could be made to operate automatic devices which would fire jets so arranged that their explosion would turn the rocket back to its desired course. Rudders could not be employed, of course, since there would be no resistance after the projectile passed outside the earth's atmosphere."

CHURCHES GET CALL TO AID THE CAMPAIGN FOR BETTER ROADS

"Good Roads Sunday" to be Observed Throughout the Country on May 16.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Issuing a call for the observance of Good Roads Sunday, May 16, in connection with National Ship by Truck-Good Roads Week, May 17-22, the committee in charge of arrangements for the week have addressed a letter to clergymen of every denomination inviting their attention to the "relation" between good roads and right living and good roads and Christian progress.

Stressing the point that the early construction of better highways will prove one of the quickest means of facilitating production, the call says: "The purpose is to fix in the heart of citizens the conviction that the next step to be taken for the welfare of the community, the nation and the world is immediately to improve the highways and to inaugurate measures whereby every mile of road bed in the United States may be hard surface as soon as the combined forces of counties, states and the Federal Government can secure this result."

Calling attention to the urgent need of increased transportation facilities the call continues: "The waterways and railways can no longer handle the volume of traffic that must be moved. Daily six car loads of freight are offered for shipment in five cars that are available for this purpose."

"City dwellers cannot continue to pay the present prices of foodstuffs. A national factor in these excessive costs is the haul from the farm to the town over primitive roads. The buman family cannot live on the present annual supply. If production is to be increased, the farmer's life must be made attractive. Nothing will produce this result as surely as modern highways."

National Good Roads Sunday, observed by pastors and congregations in churches throughout the country, May 16, is only one of the methods employed by the campaign committee to arouse discussion regarding the improved highways and highway transportation.

The other means include 60 tours radiating from as many cities into the rural districts contiguous to these centers, and an essay contest on the subject "Ship-by-Truck and Good Roads," for which a four-years' university scholarship has been offered for the best essay written by a high school pupil. The scholarship will be awarded after the essays have been read by judges to be appointed by Commissioner of Education P. P. Claxton.

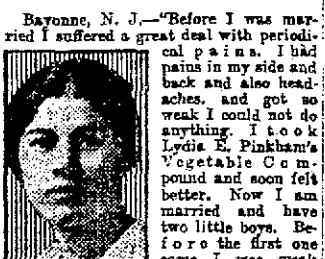

Four-minute speakers will also tour the country and make addresses in theatres where Ship-by-Truck films will be shown during the week of May 17-22.

Signs Of Disease

The First Signs of Disease are a Poor Complexion, Weakness, Emaciation and Lack of Vitality.

The first sign of returning health is increase of flesh, strength and vigor. Body weakness, emaciation and lack of vitality simply means that certain substances like iron, which go to make up the blood and nerves, have become exhausted; and to renew flesh, muscle and strength, the iron must be restored. Dr. Chase's Blood and Nerve Tablets contain iron in its most active and condensed form with such tonics as Nux Vomica, Gentian, Aloin, Capsicum and Zinc Phosphide which makes them a powerful flesh and strength maker and a wonderful restorative to the nerves, imparting the tint of health to the weak, emaciated, convalescent and over-worked. FIRST GAME OF SEASON IS A FIZZLE; EVERSON TEAM QUILTS

Decision at First Base in First Inning Causes a Trouble.

TROTTER SCORES TWICE

The opportunity to pry off the base ball lid in this vicinity in a hitting style presented itself Saturday. Trotter in which the team of that place was scheduled to play the Everson A. A. While it was not ideal baseball weather Old Sol came out in all his glory and between 500 and 700 people braved the cold mean wind to witness the opener. It is unfortunate to relate that only one inning was played. Swope opened the game in fine style for the home team fanning the first three men that faced him. Jones took off for Trotter. He fanned Smith, took first on being hit by a wild one. McVehove went out on a pop fly. Frazier walked on four wide ones. Smith and reached third when Labial came to bat. He blew on three passes but made an effort to reach first when the catcher dropped the third one. Smith came tearing in for the first run on the fumble. The throw to first was slow and wide, causing Wilson to reach wide for the toss and fumble it out like the base line. Holding the ball only a few inches off the ground and feeling for the sack with his No. 10 he apparently had the batter out but Wilson who was "umping" the game between first and second saw this play as safe. The decision of his "umps" sent Phila. Everson's twirler Glen Cutting. His protests availed him nothing. Wilson abiding by the decision as he saw it. Phila. immediately called in his team mates. When W. H. started to clock time, which was observed by Phila. he gave his team the signal to high-five off the field. Everson through its act on forfeited the game to Trotter 3-0.

The lineup of the Trotter and Everson teams with the batting order of the former:

TROTTER— Jones c. Smithkey 1. McVehove m. E. Frazier ss. Labial 3b. Rusner 2b. Mullan. If. A. Frazier 2b. Swope p.

Everson— Polakow. c. Wilson 1b. Wallik m. Suttle ss. Dvers 3b. Hahrot if. Felix if. Rednat 2b. Pisula p.

Umpires—Wall and Wilson.

CHIRPS FROM THE DIOULT

Swope was in fine form and no doubt could continue the pace he set for himself until he was to be rejected in the sixth.

No umpire is infallible. Newf Will rendered judgment as he saw the play. If he was to begin to change his decision in the first game of the season and disputes such as happened occurred in future games they would use the decision as a criterion.

Tom Jones when at bat does not need any coaches on the side lines. This bird was a couple of them rolled into one in trying to rattle the pitcher. Good work Tom even if you put a hole in the air.

all the credit for the large crowd that turned out to witness the game. Burkey said. No other paper or adverb using matter was necessary. Everson keeps posted on all sporting events, or reading The Courier's sport page. Thanks just the same Mr. Burkey but that's no news to us.

On Thursday next Trotter will play the Baltimore & Ohio shop team at Trotter at 4:30 o'clock. The fans should not hold the action of the Everson team against the locals and remain away. Such occurrences only happen once in a life time. Out of 31 games last year Trotter never even thought of leaving the field though it is said worse decisions than those made on Saturday were rendered against it.

Tomorrow morning every player of the Baltimore & Ohio shop team is asked to be at Fayette Field. Manager Steve Beucher said that the B. & O. uniforms should be ready by tomorrow and that he would go to Pittsburgh for them Wednesday so that they will sport them in the Trotter game.

The game of 25 innings between the Brooklyn and Boston teams was a record in the major league. The longest previous game on record in the majors was that between Philadelphia and Boston teams in the American league which went 21 innings September 1, 1906.

Hans Wagner it seems cannot break away from baseball. He has signed up with the Weirton Steel team to play second base. His first game will be at Weirton on Sunday. Besides Wagner the team will have Tucker, Robert's pitcher, Ty Robert, outfielder, Lefty Boppe at first, Jimmy Durkin third and Jimmie Doherty shortstop.

MONEY FOR STANDS AND BLEACHERS ONLY NEEDED

Using the crowd that turned out to witness the game between Trotter and Everson as a criterion the Connellsville Independents are sure to have a big gate at their games during the coming season. The teams that the Independents have on their schedule are the best that could be secured. Clubs that have a record for winning, games and putting up a brand of ball worth traveling a distance to see. With only two weeks remaining before the opening for the initial game the officials are making a determined effort to raise the balance of money needed to equip Fayette Field with seating arrangements. The contractor will submit his estimate for the grand stand and bleacher seats tomorrow. It is trusted by that time the club will have enough funds on hand that it will be able to inform the contractor to proceed with some of the work at least. The money on hand is far from sufficient to erect all the necessary seats. But a line of bleachers may be erected with the funds now on hand.

The uniforms which had to be returned for alterations are now at the club headquarters. Arrangements will be completed today to put some of them on display in store windows. The view of the uniforms may make the people of this city realize that Connellsville will have a real team on the diamond this year and the display will set at rest for all time doubts that may have arisen as to the club's going through with the venture. Everything has been set led. The team is organized the field has been secured and if the weather remains as it is work on the diamond will proceed immediately. The equipment has been bought and paid for. The only thing that is lacking is sufficient money to erect a grand stand and bleachers which the public is earnestly asked to contribute.

BLACCATS MAINTAIN VICTORY.

The baseball fever has a hold on the youngsters judging by the game played Saturday at Fayette Field between the Blackcats and the Fairview teams. The ferocious named team defeat the Fairviews by the score of 13-7.

The lineup:
Blackcats—D. LaRue c. J. Johns p. E. Clark ss. H. Snider, 2b. R. Long 1b. R. Stummel 3b. J. Long rf. I. Lowe m. P. Lambertson lf.
Fairview—J. Ford m. D. Trump p. W. Goodman ss. A. Mortimer 1b. B. Bufano 2b. F. Bufano 3b. A. Boyle lf. E. Trump m. A. Constantine lf.

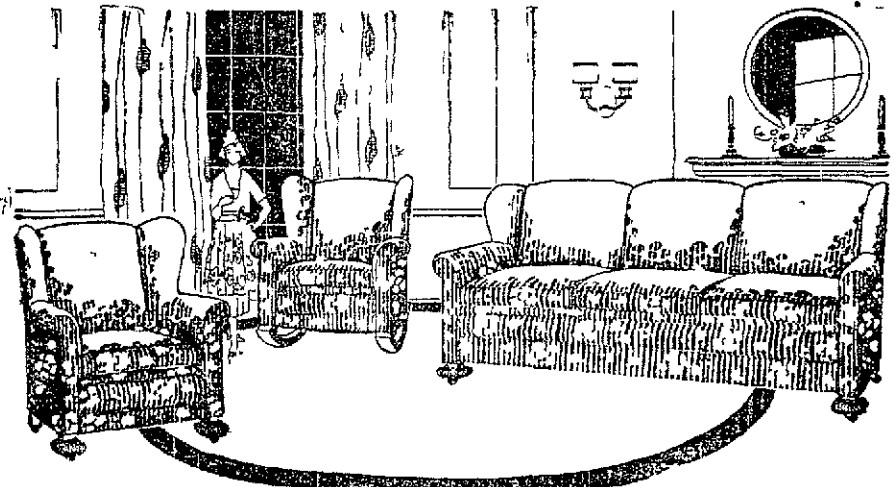

HILL TOPS CRUSHED

The Y. M. C. A. Juniors defeated the Hill Tops Saturday afternoon at Fayette Field 21-11. Batteries were M. Cormick and Ross for the Y. M. C. A. and Zima and Drence and Cochran Zima and Evans for the Hill Tops.

BOXING.

Two world champions were in bouts Saturday night and both were returned winners. At Lawrence, Mass. Jimmy Wilde the fly weight champ on knocked out Bobby Dyson of New Bedford the New England bantamweight champion in the first round. A Philadelphia Jack Britton the welterweight king had no trouble in defeating Frankie Maguire of Williamsport in a six round bout.

The Strange Case of Cavendish

Miss La Rue bit her lip. She had found her match evidently, but would strike harder.

"A reporter on the Star. Naturally, we couldn't help wondering what you was doing out here. You are in the newspaper business, aren't you?"

"Yes," realizing further concealment was useless, "but on my vacation. I thought I explained all that to Mr. Beaton. I am not exactly a reporter. I do feature-stuff."

"Whatever that is."

"Human-interest stories; anything unusual; strange happenings in every-day life, you know."

"Murders, and—robberies."

"Occasionally. If they are out of the ordinary." She took a swift breath and made the plunge. "Like the Frederick Cavendish case—do you remember that?"

Miss La Rue stared at her across the darkening room, but if she changed color the gloom concealed it and her voice was steady enough.

"No," she said shortly, "I never read those things. What happened?"

"Oh, nothing much. He was rich, and was found dead in his apartments at the Waldron—evidently killed by a burglar. The case is probably forgotten by this time. Let's speak about something else—I hate to talk shop."

Miss La Rue stood up, and shook out her skirt.

"That's what I say; and it seems to me it would be more social if we had something to drink. You ain't too nice to partake of a cocktail, are you? Good! Then we'll have one. What's the hotelkeeper's name?"

"Timmons."

"Do you suppose he'd come up if I pounded on the door?"

Miss Donovan slipped off the bed.

"I don't believe he is in the office. He went up the street just before dark. You light the lamp while I'll see if I can find the Chinaman out in the hall."

She closed the door behind her, strode noisily down the hall, then silently and swiftly retraced her steps and stooped silently down to where a crack yawned in the lower panel. That came instant a match flared within the room and was applied to the wick of the lamp. The narrow opening gave only a glimpse of half the room—the wash-stand, the chair, and lower part of the bed. She saw Miss La Rue drop the match, then open her valise and go through it, swiftly. She found nothing, and turned to the wash-stand drawer. The latter was empty, and was instantly closed again, the girl staring about the room, as though at her wit's end. Suddenly she disappeared along the edge of the bed, beyond the radius of the crack in the door. What was it she was doing? Searching the bed, no doubt; seeking something hidden beneath the pillow, or mattress.

Whatever her purpose, she was gone scarcely a moment, sliding silently back to the chair beside the window, with watchful eyes again fixed on the closed door. Miss Donovan smiled and straightened up, well satisfied with her ruse. It had served to demonstrate that the ex-chorus girl was far from being as calmly indifferent as she had assumed and it had made equally evident the fact that her visit had an object—the discovery of why Miss Donovan was in Haskell. Doubtless she had made the call at Enright's suggestion. Very well, the lady was quite welcome to all the information obtained. Stella opened the door and the eyes of the two met.

"The Chinaman seems to have gone home," the mistress of the room said quietly. "At least, he is not on this floor or in the office, and I could see nothing of Timmons anywhere."

"Then I suppose we don't drink," complained Miss La Rue. "Well, I might as well go to bed. There ain't much else to do in this lay town."

She got up and moved toward the door.

"If you're only here viewing the scenery, I guess you won't remain long."

"Not more than a day or so. I am planning a ride into the mountains before leaving," pleasantly, "I hope I shall see you again."

"You're quite liable to," an ugly cunt to the lip, "maybe more than you'll want. Good-night."

Miss Donovan stood there motionless after the door closed behind her guest. She was conscious of the stillness in those final words, the half-expressed threat, but the smile did not desert her lips. Her only thought was that the other was angry, irritated over her failure, her inability to make a report to her masters. She looked at the valise on the floor, and laughed outright, but as her eyes lifted once more she beheld her traveling suit draped over the head-board of the bed, and instantly the expression of her face changed. She had forgotten hanging it there. That must have been where the woman went when she disappeared. It was not to rummage the bed at all, but to hastily run through the pockets of her jacket. The girl swiftly crossed the room and flung coat and skirt onto the bed. She remembered now thrusting the telegram from Parrish into a pocket on the morning of its receipt. It was gone!

Her first thought was to search elsewhere, although she immediately realized the uselessness of any such attempt. The message had been in her pocket, as she recalled distinctly; she had fully intended destroying it at the same time she had torn up the letter of instruction, but failed to do so. Now it was in the bag.

Roman, and would be shown to the others. It was some time before she could recall to memory the exact wording of the telegram, but finally it came to her bit by bit.

"If any clues, advise immediately. While digging hard. Letter of instruction follows."

"FARRISS."

There was no mention of names, yet these people could scarcely fail to recognize that this had reference to the Cavendish case. The thought of personal danger never once entered her mind. Timidity was not part of her nature and she gave this phase of the matter no thought. But she must communicate with Westcott, tell him all that had occurred. She would send him a note the first thing in the morning.

Somewhat reassured by this reasoning, she was still seated there, staring out into the night, when Enright and Beaton returned. Stella heard the trill of horses' feet, before her eyes distinguished the party approaching, and she drew back cautiously. In the glow of the light she could perceive four men in saddle half in front of the hotel, three of whom dismounted and entered the building, the fourth grasping the reins of the riderless animals and leading them up the street. She heard the murmur of voices below and the heavy steps of the men as they came slowly up the stairs. Then a door opened creakingly and she caught the sound of a woman's voice.

"Is that you, Ned?"

"Sure; what are you doing up at this hour?"

"Never mind that. Who have you got with you?"

"Enright and Lucy—why?"

"I want you all to come in here a minute; don't make so much noise."

A voice or two grumbled, but feet shuffled along the bare floor and the door creaked again as it was carefully closed behind them. Stella opened her own door a crack and listened; the hall, lighted only by a single oil-lamp at the head of the stairs, was deserted and silent. She stole cautiously forward, but the voices in Miss La Rue's room were muffled and indistinct, not an audible word reaching her ears. The key was in the lock, shutting out all view of the interior. Well, what was the difference? She knew what was occurring within—the stolen telegram was being displayed, and discussed. That would not delay them long and it would never do for her to be discovered in the hall.

Convinced of the uselessness of retreating, she returned to her own room, closing and bolting the door.

This time she removed some of her clothing, and lay down on the bed, conscious of being exceedingly tired, yet in no degree sleepy. She rested there, with wide-open eyes, listening until the distant door creaked again, and she heard the footsteps of the men in the hall. They had not retreated in the chorus girl's room long, nor was anything said outside "to arouse her suspicions. Reassured, Miss Donovan snuggled down into her pillow, unable to distinguish where the men went, but satisfied they had sought their rooms. They would attempt nothing more that night, and she had better gain what rest she could. It was not easy falling asleep, in spite of the silence, but at last she dropped off into a doze.

Suddenly some unusual noise aroused her, and she sat upright, un-

Young Girls
Made Strong

Mother tells how Vinol, our Cod Liver and Iron Tonic, built up her daughter.

Belvidere, Ill.—"My daughter was so weak and run-down that she had fainting spells and headaches. My druggist recommended Vinol, and the result was that her health and strength were built up very quickly by its use, and I hope my statement will convince other mothers of what Vinol will do for their little ones who are weak, run-down or delicate."—Mrs. JOHN LEWIS.

The Beef and Cod Liver Peptones contained in Vinol aided by the Iron and Hypophosphites quickly restores the appetite, aids digestion, makes rich, red blood and creates strength.

NOTE—Your leading druggist has for many years specially recommended Vinol because the full formula is printed on labels. Your money back if it fails.

able for the moment to comprehend what had occurred. Then something tingled at the glass of her window, sharply distinct, as though a pebble had been tossed upward. Instantly she was upon her feet, and had crossed the room, her head thrust out. The light in the office had been extinguished, and the night was black, yet she could make out dimly the figure of a man close in against the side of the house, a mere hulking shadow. At the same instant he seemed to move slightly, and some missile grazed her face, and fell upon the floor, striking the rug with a dull thud. She drew back in alarm, yet immediately grasped the thought that this must be some secret message, some communication from Westcott.

Drawing down the torn curtain, she touched a match to the lamp and sought the intruding missile. It had rolled beneath the bed—a small stone with a bit of paper securely attached. The girl tore this open eagerly, her eyes searching the few lines.

"Must see you tonight. Have learned things, and am going away. Go down back stairs, and meet me at big cottonwood behind hotel; don't fail."

Her breath came fast as she read, and crunched the paper into the palm of her hand. She understood, and felt no hesitancy. Westcott had made discoveries so important he must communicate them at once and there was no other way. He dare not come to her openly at that hour. Well, she was not afraid—not of Jim Westcott. She paused in her hasty dressing, wondering at herself, dimly aware that a new feeling partly actuated her desire to meet the man again—a feeling thoroughly alien to the Cavendish mystery. She glanced into the cracked mirror and laughed, half ashamed at her eagerness, yet utterly unable to suppress the quickened beat of her pulse.

HOME MADE RECIPE CATARRH AND COLDS

Nonexpensive—Cut This Out.

Thousands are making this beneficial remedy at home and anyone who has catarrh or a cold can do the same.

Ask your druggist for three quarters of an ounce of Mentholized Arceine and pour it into a pint bottle, then fill the bottle with water that has been boiled. Gargle the throat as directed and sniff or spray the liquid into the nostrils twice daily. It's a simple way to get rid of cold and catarrh and keeps the nasal passage and throat so clean and healthy that germs of flu or any other germ will have a hard time gaining a foothold.

RESTORED TO NORMAL
HEALTH BY BIO-FEREN

"I feel I owe you people a world of gratitude for the benefit I have received in using your wonderful remedy—Bio-Feren Tablets, which have completely restored me to normal conditions," says Joseph E. Webb of Muncie, Indiana.

Bio-Feren is without doubt the grandest and quickest remedy for nervous, run down, weak, anemic men and women ever offered direct through the druggists and is not at all expensive.

Take two after each meal and one at bed time, and after seven days take one after each meal and one at bed time until the supply is exhausted.

Then if you feel that any claim made in this special notice is untrue—if you are not in better health—if you do not feel ambitious, more vigorous and keen minded, yes, twice as much as you did before, the druggist who sold you the tablets will gladly hand you back just what you paid for them.

All druggists in this city and vicinity have a supply on hand, or can easily get it for you.

Seven a day for seven days—Wonderful results.

THE SOISSON.

"HEART OF THE HILLS"—Starring Mary Pickford, the idol of the screen, is being presented today.

Mrs. Pickford takes the role of Marjorie, who has been responsible for gathering the night-riders for the purpose of robbing the mountains of one Sanders, who Marjorie believes has cheated her and mother out of valuable coal lands. When Sanders scoffs at the night-riders, and refuses to take them seriously, shots are exchanged and he is killed.

Seeking to injure Marjorie, Steve Honeycutt, who had been in league with Sanders, informs the sheriff that Marjorie is responsible for the shot that killed Sanders. Marjorie flees to a retreat in the mountains but yields to the request of a kindly school teacher to return to the lowlands for trial.

The prosecuting attorney has proven it seems that Marjorie is guilty and is advising that she be hanged when suddenly the court-room is thrown into a state of turmoil and one of the most novel occurrences ever seen in motion pictures takes place.

THE PARKINSON.

"WOLVES OF THE STREET"—A highly sensational and real melodrama, featuring Edward J. Cobb, is today's attraction. The hero plunges along through all sorts of danger and difficulties with headlong vigor, and there is characterization, something unusual in this sort of play. The hero, impersonated by Mr. Cobb, has the spirit of adventure in his soul. He takes desperate chances in truly American style. A selection comedy is a so being shown Wednesday and Thursday. Emily Wehlen will be seen in "Lifting Shadows," the story of a girl who lives under the string of a clouded past; whose paternal teaching helped her to explain. This is a powerful drama of timely interest with lavish settings and a tremendous dramatic appeal.

Ruth Frye of Scotland and Mrs. C. T. Martin of Bellevue gave very interesting talks. Miss Charlotte Mullin and Miss Virginia Harper sang.

The evening session was in charge of Rev. S. Palmer. A duet was given by Misses Mullin and Harper and a solo by Mrs. Frank Cooper. Addresses were made by Mrs. Martin and Rev. T. C. Harper. A box lunch was served at dinner in the evening.

Mrs. Anna Gherke's funeral yesterday was one of the largest ever held from the local Lutheran church yesterday. It was in charge of the pastor Rev. Leathman. Interment followed in the local cemetery.

HOW TO RAISE BABY CHICKS

Put Avicol in the drinking water.

Most people lose half of every hatch, and soon to expect it. Chick cholera or white diarrhoea is the trouble. The U. S. Government states that over half the chicks hatched die from this cause.

An Avicol tablet, placed in the drinking water, will positively save your little chicks from all such diseases. Inside of 48 hours the sick ones will be as lively as crickets. Avicol keeps them healthy and makes them grow and develop.

Mrs. Yarnie Trukey, R. F. D. 2, St. Paris, O., writes: "I had 90 chicks and they all died but 22. Then I commenced on Avicol and haven't lost any since. They have grown wonderfully."

It costs nothing to try Avicol. If you do not find that it prevents and promptly cures white diarrhoea, chick cholera and all bowel diseases of poultry, tell us and your money will be refunded by return mail. Avicol is sold by most druggists and poultry supply dealers, or you can send 50¢ or 10¢ today for a package by mail postpaid. Burroughs-Wellcome Co., 230 Columbia Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

are seen in crisp organdies, printed voiles, gingham, linens and tricolettes in a wealth of color and design

ORGANDIE--

There's something delightfully roughful about an organdie so naturally prim and starchy when it is piquet finished in fancy curves and trimmed with tiny flutings. And, if, as sometimes happens, prim roses with spraggy leaves adorn it—then it's surely bewitching.

Blues and pinks and yellows with several peachy frocks all tucked and lace trimmed are among the models shown at

$12.95 to $45.00

TRICOLETES--

The girl who wears smocks and loves their freedom can be perfectly happy the "dressed up," if she owns one of these summery tricolettes with an embroidered blouse and crepe de chine skirt—accordion plaid, too, and of a most satisfying breadth.

Rose and white, blue and white or all white, she can take her choice at

$49.75 to $75.00

Dark blue, brown and black tricolettes up to $75.00.

GINGHAMS--

One of the easiest ways to keep cool in summer is to have plenty of clean-looking gingham, simply made, easily laundered, tailored to a nicety and with the choicest of crisp organdie or embroidery collars and cuffs.

Many models show overskirts, but the variety in design is equaled only by the choice of colors and styles of plaids. All sizes at

$8.75 to $19.75

Children's gingham and chambrays at $1.95 to $12.95.

FINE LINENS--

Never have linens been so desirable as this year when they are still regarded as rarities and seldom if ever have they been shown more attractively made up for general, not merely sports wear.

Hand embroidery makes more individual these models of 1926, so smartly tailored, tub-proof and suitable for any dress occasion. In planning a vacation wardrobe these lovely embroidered linens deserve consideration at
